Benefits of Manufacturing and Distributing Certified Organic Personal Care Products

- ◇ You're supporting organic growers and farm workers
- ◇ You're supporting the sustainability of our environment
- ◇ You're promoting healthier lifestyles
- ◇ You're benefiting yourself and others, especially those with sensitive skin or skin conditions, by promoting the use of non-gmo, non-toxic, skin-care products

Why Certify your Organic Personal Care Products?

Customers of organic food and beverages are generally conscientious of what is entering their body. They want less toxins, more nutrients, and are aware of the impact conventional agriculture and manufacturing practices have on the environment.

Each year, more people are also becoming aware that it isn't only what is consumed that affects the health and well-being of the body. A person's skin absorbs over half of what is applied to it, and health conscious consumers are beginning to seek out skin care products that are beneficial to their skin and body without the use of chemicals.

Why not give these socially responsible people more of what they desire – more of what we could all use?

Currently, the USDA does not have labeling regulations on organic personal care products. To preserve organic integrity, many articles are being distributed, urging customers to check labels to insure the product is certified organic by a reputable agency.

International Certification Services, Inc certifies personal care products to the National Organic Program, requiring these products follow the same standards as organic growers and food processors.

With organic certification through ICS you can provide assurance to your customers, giving them the peace of mind that they are applying healthy, non-toxic cosmetics, lotions, etc to their skin when they use your product.
